Why is e^x not a power series with that form? In other words, why is e^x equal to $1+x+\frac{x^2}{2}+\frac{x^3}{6}+\dots$? I read this question and answer a few hours ago. I tried to prove it, without success. I know that you can use the Taylor series to prove it, but I want to know why the Taylor series does not work. Please help. Thanks! A: This is not true. The function $f(x)=e^x$ can be represented by the following series: $f(x)=1+x+\frac{x^2}{2}+\frac{x^3}{6}+\frac{x^4}{24}+\dots$ Why do we call this the "Taylor Series"? Because if we are given a function of x (say, $f(x)$) then this series helps us to approximate the value of $f(x)$ around some point x_0 with an accuracy

You have stepped into the elevator of the underground temple, and the elevator suddenly falls. You are the last guest in the elevator. The temple doors open, and a terrible boss, the PINK ELEPHANT, appears. The PINK ELEPHANT has a terrible voice! The PINK ELEPHANT has claws, and tentacles. The PINK ELEPHANT has a strange "gauge". If the gauge is filled with the red, the control panel of the PINK ELEPHANT will explode, and if it is filled with green, the control panel will not explode. However, the gauge can also decrease. If the gauge decreases to zero, the PINK ELEPHANT will come out. You defeat the PINK ELEPHANT to recover the control panel. The control panel is suspended in mid-air by a wire-like pole. The control panel is equipped with a control key. If the control key is pressed, you can control the direction of the controls, and press the fire button to shoot the PINK ELEPHANT. If the control key is not pressed, you can use all of your weapons. The PINK ELEPHANT has various different weapons and skills, and various different skills can be used at a time. If the gauge of the PINK ELEPHANT's gauge is filled with the red while attacking, you will be able to use the special skill. A weapon is selected by pressing its corresponding button. If the red gauge has decreased, you can use any weapon, but if the red gauge has increased, you can use the weapon you selected before. Weapon skills are varied. To activate the special skills of the weapons, you need to press the corresponding button when the red gauge is filled with the green. You can use all of the weapons at once, but you cannot use one weapon and activate the special skill of another weapon at the same time. You can only keep a set of weapons in your inventory, but you can switch weapons by pressing the corresponding button. You need to empty the red gauge of the PINK ELEPHANT to exit the arena. If you defeat the PINK ELEPHANT in the given number of turns, you will pass through a new stage. The game will pause if you fight the PINK ELEPHANT for more than 15 turns. If you fight the PINK ELEPHANT 20 times, the game will end and you will be able to start a new game. Boss Monsters

What's new:

Sunday, May 10, 2010 We're fast approaching the 5th of July. I wonder how many of us (myself included) is ready to start a new adventure.... Those of us that are thinking of moving to the States are always advised to pack lightly because moving and settling in is a lot of work. It's also recommended that you should stock up on things like tins of baked beans, packet noodles and bread so that you won't starve if you're stuck in a house with no central heating. We take our food pretty seriously around here and buying a lot of staples at the beginning of summer seems to make a lot of sense.... but do you have to buy it all? In the past few years I've noticed the phrase 'one size fits all' is being constantly used more and more. Every time I buy an item in a grocery store, I'm baffled by the fact that the packet noodles says 10 servings but the tag on the packet is for 2 people..... and the bread has 37 g in one slice. Clothes seem to be another area that has been 'standardised' in the past few years. Many of us complain that most items of clothing don't fit properly and only fall loosely on our bodies. We end up in a situation where when you try to wear something new you end up with several items in the wardrobe that do the same thing. Have you heard the phrase 'One size does not fit all?' We keep thinking that it's just us but now it seems that many stores are also following suit. Why do we think one size does it all? I'm sure it has to do with the fact that lots of us think that we are just a certain size. If you think about it, when you buy a brand new pair of shoes in the shop you're not really given a clue about their size because the descriptions are pretty generic. Why not just buy the ones that suits you best? You get the shoes home and perhaps try them on if you're in the mood to (a great alternative to a trip to the shops) but no matter what size you choose the shoes will never feel/fit exactly the way you thought they would. Why not buy a size up or a down, why do you have to get it right first? Our super
