Roblox is an online game platform and game creation system developed by Roblox Corporation that allows users to program games and play games created by other users. Created by David Baszucki and Erik Cassel in 2004 and released in 2006, the platform hosts user-created games of multiple genres coded in the programming language Lua. For most of Roblox's history, it was relatively small, both as a platform and a company. Roblox began to grow rapidly in the second half of the 2010s, and this growth has been accelerated by the COVID-19 pandemic. Roblox is free to play, with in-game purchases available through a virtual currency called Robux. As of August 2020, Roblox had over 164 million monthly active users, including more than half of all American children under 16. Although Roblox has received generally positive reviews from critics, it has faced criticism for its moderation, microtransactions, and exploitative practices directed toward children. For the month of April, 2020, Roblox raised approximately $60 million in funding to support their growing team and the rapid expansion. The official Roblox website states that it is the number one "platform for kids to build, create, and play games." Roblox was started in 2004 by two undergraduate and graduate students from Carnegie Mellon University, David Baszucki and Erik Cassel. Roblox allows users to create their own virtual worlds and games through customizing characters and buildings. Roblox allows users to create their own character and can access more than 4 million items to build with, such as furniture, vehicles, and clothing. In addition, Roblox allows users to create a storyline and a plot to make the game. Roblox, as of 2019, has over 175 million active users. Roblox is free to play with in-game purchases available through a virtual currency known as Robux. Robux is similar to another game currency known as "Energy". The company has raised $60 million in funding in the past year. Since inception, Roblox has grown at an exponential rate, becoming the largest game platform within three years of release. Roblox receives 20 million views a day and 125,000 to 300,000 active users a day. As of March 2017, Roblox had one billion registered users. Roblox reached a milestone in September 2017 by reaching 2.5 million daily active users. Roblox reached 3 million daily active users
